Next in Jeany Liad, Mr. P. T. Barnum

Next in Jeany Liad, Mr. P. T. Barnum is at the present nomen the most alliced about individual in the U. States. The queen of song and the Ying of showness distant parts of the lend. This being the case, a word or two concerning the origin and growth of this Napoleon of curiosities and public annusements, will not be out of place. Mr. Barnum is a native of the wondon nutureg State, he having made his appearance in Bethel, Ct., July 5, 1816. At the age of fourteen he was left fitther less and public amunesments, will not be out of place. Mr. Barnum is a native of the wondon nutureg State, he having made his appearance in Bethel, Ct., July 5, 1816. At the age of fourteen he was left fitther less and pennyless, and with the true Yankee instinct, emigrated to Brooklym, N. Y. and entered a store. Two years after he opened a confectionary store in Danbury, Ct., then a dry goed store, then a grosery. A few years after he spend a confectionary store in Danbury, Ct., then a dry goed store, then a grosery. A lew years after he united for three years, when getting into a quarrel with Judge Dagget, the latter arrested him for libel, and placed him in prison.—He was also, about this time, a Universaliat minister, according to the "Frumpet." In due time he came out of jail, and went to New York. We next hear of him as solling lettery tickets, at which he made mondy. But it was evident he had not yet found his natural vocation. Traveling near Louisville, he met a very old black woman named Joyce Heath. He purchased her—called her 150 years old—produced the papers to show that she had been the slave of Washington—was enriched to a handsome extent by exhibiting her all over the Union, when she died, and he published a series of papers showing that the whole affair had been a humbuy! After this, Mr. Barsum traveled in connection with a variety of public performances, and finally got Master Diamond, the great negret denored and of the papers to show that she had been a family got Master Diamo with a variety of public performances, and finally got Master Diamond, the great negre dancer, and by his assistance, realized much money. But he eventually came of Mr. and Mrs. John Grieve. They were in the habit of rowing and sailing up the tended Tom Thumb from one extreme of this Union to the other, and always attracted such crowds as never before had been gathered together. He then took Tom to Europe, and by his ready tact and wonderful ingenuity, in which he excels all other men living, Mr. Barnum soon brought Tom before all the crowned heads, and ranidly put away his thousands upon thousan rapidly put away his thousands upon thou-sands of solid cash. He had obtained the American Museum, then in a fearful de-cline, and was enabled to purchase and ber of the Convention from Cass, has latepay for it completely. He paid large ly arrived at the Capitol from home, a disprices for curiosities, and soon had it filled prices for curiosities, and soon had it filled tance of seventy miles. His master left for the Convention on Wednesday, taking mances of a moral kind, in opposition to theatrical entertainments. He succeeded in all he undertook. Good luck followed him like a spaniel, and he rapidly acquired a period of six days, "Zack" was found at the Capitol, demanding admission. How he found the way remains entirely a mysan independent fortune. Latterly he has erected a beautiful country seat called "Iranistan," near Bridgeport, Ct., at an expense of over $150,000, which is the admiration of all who behold it. He has enmiration of all who behold it. He has enlarged his Museum, fitted up an elegant one also in Philadelphia, put gorgeous saloons for afternoon and evening performances in each, and may be said to clear his $50,000 a year without any exageration. But his crowning speculation was the engagement of Jenny Lind, Nobody but Barnum would have dreamed of such an enterprise. There is little doubt, that any one not accustomed to the appearance and sefficients of the such any one not accustomed to the appearance and sefficients. But would be likely to deceive any one not accustomed to the appearance and sefficients of the such any one not accustomed to the appearance and sefficients of the such any one not accustomed to the appearance and sefficients of the such any one not accustomed to the appearance and sefficients of the such and the successful stroke. - Boston Rambler.

Here is an anecdote which conveys moral lecture :

"Here are three pretty ladies of my acquaintance," (writes a friend of ours) 'at a milliner's purchasing caps.' Pretty little 'what-nots' the said caps are; one is a la republique,' another 'rococo.' But before the ladies buy, they make a bargain with the milliner. Their mother is lying dangerously ill; she may die; possibly within a day or so; and if so, all these tasteful little lilac and blue bows and fly away ribbons must be changed to black without extra charge. That is the agreement, So the three pretty sisters pulled out three pretty purses and paid for the three pretty caps with the lilac and blue They were evidently thinking of their dying mother, or they never could have driven that hard bargain with the milliner concerning the black ribbons .-'Ludies,' said I, 'you remind me of what happened to me once. An aunt of mine was very ill, and my Sunday wastcoat was of yellow kerseymere. I could not afford to buy a new one in case she died, and my only way was to dyo my waist-coat. But the dyer said it would take a week to do it. Here was a strait! If I got my waistcoat dyed in advance, my aunt might live; if it went undyed, my aust might die. For two or three days I went around melancholy enough, and peo-ple said 'Poor fellow! he takes it hard about his aunt! At last I determined to make the sacrifice; and I took my vest to the dyer. During the week I watched my aunt with more than filial care; on some days she was better, on other days worse. That was a black-and-vellow week for me. At last, much to my disappointment, on the merchants and others have held meetings, very day my black waistcoat came home, in Pittsburgh, to take into consideration the doctors pronounced her out of danger! the law passed by the late Congress to pro-When I had finished, I was surprised to vide for the greater safety of passengers. An Ingenious Contrivance.

Among the many ingenious contrivances which are at present exciting attention at the Fair of the American Institute in New York, is one to supply the place of an amputated leg. It is composed of solid willow wood and steel aprings, with a due regard to the laws of anatomy, every joint in the natural leg being copied with a minuteness and nicety deserving of much praise. The Post says that it is impossible, when attached to the body, to discover any difference between it and the natural limb.

THE ORIGINAL DISCOVERER OF THE Genuine Townsend Sarsaparilla.
Old Dr. Townsend is now shout 70 years of are and has long been known as the AUTHOR and DISCOVERER of the GENUINE ORIGINAL "TOWNSEND SARSAPARILLA." Being poor, he was compelled to limit its manufacture, by which means it has been kept out of market, and the ealse of crumeribed to those only who had proved its worth, and known its value. It had reached the ears of many, nevertheless, as those persons who had been hasiled of sore discusses, and saved from death, proclaimed its wonderfur manufactured on the largest scale, and is called for throughout the length and breadth of the land, especially as it is found incapable of degeneration or deterioration.

Unlike young S. P. Townsend's, it improves with age, and never changes but for the better; because it is prepared on scientific principles by a scientific man. The highest knowledge of Chemistry, and the latest discoveries of the art, have all been brought into requisition in the transfacture of the Old Dr's Sarsaparilla. The Sarsaparilla poot, it is well known to medical men, contains many medicinal properties, and some properties which are men or ussies, and others, which if retained in preparing it for use, preduce fermentation and neid, which is injurious to the age sem. Some of the properties of Sarsaparilla are so voicific that they entirely evaporate and are lost in the preparation, if they are not preserved by a scientific process, known on y to those experienced in its manufacture. Moreover, these volcitie principles, which fly off in vapor, or as an analation, under heat, are the very essential medical preparties of the root, which give to it all its value.

Any person can boil or size the root call decined proties of the root, which give to it all its value.

This is so prepared that all the inert properties of the Sareaparilla ruto are firm removed, everything capable of becoming acid or fermentation is extracted and rejected, then every particle of medical virtue is secured in a pure sud concentrated form; and thus it is rendered incapable of losing any of its valuable and healing properties. Prepared in this way, it is made the most powerful agent in the Curre of innumerable Diseases.

Hence the reason why we hear commendations on every
